Arts

Youth and Popular Culture Magazine Archive

COMING SOON: Rare journals and a selection of videos explore the emergence and evolution of youth culture, interplay between youth and popular culture, youth involvement in resistance and subcultures, youth movements and the shifting portrayal of youth in the media. Diverse topics include: coming of age, consumer culture, countercultures, media and technology, race, sexuality, gender, subcultures of resistance and more.

Entertainment Industry Magazine Archive Film and Television (EIMA 3)

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER: “Music, Radio and the Stage” (EIMA 1) and “Film and Television” (EIMA 2) collections, combined, deliver 24 key U.S. and U.K. trade and consumer magazines covering the spectrum of the entertainment industry and media. Cover-to-cover digitization spans the first issues to the year 2000.

New “Film and Television” (EIMA 3) will offer 12 additional consumer and trade magazine backfiles relating to film and television. Highlights include major U.S. consumer titles such as The Hollywood Reporter as well as historically significant U.K. publications, notably Kine Weekly.

Art & Architecture Archive 2

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER: This collection spans the history of art and architecture, from fine and applied arts to interior and industrial design, landscape gardening, and restoration. Titles include standard-bearers like Architectural Review, British Journal of Photography, Graphis, Print, and many others previously unavailable digitally, with full-color coverage from first issues to 2005.

New Art & Architecture Archive 2 brings an additional 21 key trade and consumer magazine archives into this program, covering a wide variety of sub-disciplines in the arts and architecture/design, with full-color coverage from first issues to 2015.
Early European Books

Developed and produced in collaboration with scholars, rare book librarians, bibliographers and other experts, Early European Books offers access to thousands of fully searchable pre-1701 books in high resolution and full color. Collection 14, launched in December 2018, marks a return to the holdings of the prestigious Bibliothèque nationale de France in Paris with a selection of titles focused on the themes of philosophy, medicine and science.

JUNE: Collection 15 will cover religion and science.

NOVEMBER: Collection 16 will explore French culture and etiquette.

History Vault Pinkerton’s National Detective Agency Records, 1853–1999

APRIL: During its colorful 150-year history, the oldest company of private investigators in the U.S. pursued some of the nation’s most notorious criminals, like Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, Jesse James, Alfred Brady, John Dillinger and countless others. This fascinating collection offers exciting research opportunities in criminology, sociology, the history of law enforcement and labor relations.

MAY: This module focuses on the diplomatic, legal and political maneuvering during and after WWII regarding German art looting in Europe, recovery of cultural objects, efforts by the U.S. and other Allied Powers to prevent the secreting of Axis assets, claims for restitution, meeting minutes and background materials.

AUGUST: Learn how African American policemen fought against discrimination and police brutality by the Chicago Police Department. Discover a wealth of resources covering the work of the League’s, its education and action arm, the League to Improve the Community. Also included are items on numerous law enforcement and civil rights organizations across the country.

History Vault Progressive Era: Voices of Reform, 1875–1945

OCTOBER: This module joins the growing sets of records on one of the major reform eras in American History. It consists of the correspondence, writings, speeches, diaries and photographs of five leading members of the Progressive movement: John R. Commons, Charles R. Van Hise, Richard T. Ely, Edward A. Ross and Charles McCarthy. Individually and collectively, these men proved they were more than idealists by devising and carrying out major reforms to solve the problems caused by the growth of industrialization following the Civil War.

History Vault Revolutionary War and Early America: Collections from the Massachusetts Historical Society, 1721–1860

NOVEMBER: The musical Hamilton has led to increased interest in this pivotal period in American history. This module covers one of the most-studied periods in American history and consists of 26 collections from the holdings of the Massachusetts Historical Society, focusing on the Colonial Era, the Revolutionary War and the Early National Period, into the Civil War era.

History Vault Socialist Party of America Papers, 1897–1976

DECEMBER: Students will find valuable primary sources for the study of the labor movement, civil rights, anti-war activities and the history of the “American left” along with an exceptional historical overview of the party’s struggle to gain support. Materials include correspondence, position papers, memoranda, financial records, pamphlets, broadsides and leaflets.

JUNE: U.S. government records document the creation of the major institutions and agreements, including the International Atomic Energy Agency, the first iteration of the safeguards system and treaty negotiations. Also detailed is the “Nth Country Problem” and efforts to monitor nuclear activities in China, France, India, Israel and elsewhere. Another important topic covered is the diplomatic effort to deter possible German independent weapons capability.
Digital National Security Archive U.S. Policy Towards Iran: From the Revolution to the Nuclear Accord, 1979–2015

DECEMBER: Since the overthrow of the U.S.-backed Shah and the subsequent hostage crisis in 1979, Iran has been widely considered a major foreign policy challenge for the U.S. Yet, every American president since then has sought to establish ties with the Islamic Republic. This collection traces the relationship from its darkest points to the signing of the controversial nuclear accord.

Trends & Policy: Immigration and Border Security, 1790–2018

NOVEMBER: The inaugural module in this new collection connects policies implemented by the U.S. and U.K. governments with the data-driven results and trends of those policies—and includes analytical reports and news articles to provide context. Presented in a unique interface designed specifically to help researchers make key connections and discoveries, this product includes timelines, topic pages, and data visualization tools.

Supreme Court Insight, 1933–1974

NOVEMBER: The fourth module in Supreme Court Insight—the single location to discover dockets, complete opinions, oral arguments, joint appendices and briefs, including those filed by amicus curiae. The interface narrows searches within a specific case on a dynamic page, while case compilation pages are organized to help users quickly identify content in Petition and Merit stages. An invaluable resource for legal researchers as well as students of U.S. history, political science, business, education, and more.

Regulatory Insight: Guidance and Policy

NOVEMBER: This new collection offers Federal agency administrative guidance and policy documents harvested from government agency websites. Guidance documents are agency statements that set forth a policy or an interpretation of a statutory or regulatory issue. These hard-to-find documents inform agency enforcement decisions and steps for regulation compliance.
